

- Home
- News
- Charlotte Talks
- Arts
- Support WFAE
- About WFAE

- \(\(\(Listen Live\)\)\)
- Audio Archives
- Podcasts

 Search

Search WFAE.org
Search News & Events

Search

Search WFAE News & Events

View other stories

Wrongfully Convicted Man Speaks to Local Students Listen

Dwayne Dail spent 18 years in a North Carolina prison for a crime he did not commit. He was convicted of raping a 12-year-old girl in Goldsboro. Last year he was pardoned and released from prison after DNA evidence proved he was an innocent man. Dail was in Charlotte talking to students at Johnson C. Smith and Charlotte School of Law. He is now 39 years-old. WFAE's Lisa Miller asked him about his life after prison.

Friday January 25, 2008

View other stories

Contact WFAE | Privacy Statement | Search

Copyright 2002 WFAE. All rights reserved.

powered by blurFactor